Honor bestowed on Mae Stover

BY JENNY KIRKPATRICK

She is a person of warmth and dedication and she was honored early this year by the Democratic Party. She is Mae Stover, executive director of the Democratic headquarters in Upland.

Mae's is a familiar face around town, and even though she's a dedicated Democrat, she has friends in the Republican ranks, too. She's the kind of person everyone likes.

Her award commended her for her outstanding service to the party. It was the George Miller Jr. annual award, and she is the second person to receive it.

"I had no idea what was happening when they called me to come to the rostrum and when I got the award, I just couldn't believe it." She also got a standing ovation as she is a familiar figure throughout the state.

Mae has a list of duties that range from making and serving a hot cup of coffee to those who drop by the headquarters on Euclid Avenue to the responsibility ties of being an executive secretary. She wears many hats and wears them well.

The Democratic party moved its headquarters to Upland two years ago and even though the town is generally Republican, Mae says she has received red carpet treatment from city officials.

Even though she is a Democrat through and through, were you to wander into her headquarters to register as a voter, she would be impartial as she values her long time role of voter registrar. In fact she has devoted many of her "free" hours in registering voters wherever they may be. Mae was reared in New York and came to Upland in the 30's. Her husband was an automobile dealer.

She started her political career working for Gene Nisbet when he ran for the Assembly. "I got involved with Gene's campaigning, in fact I ran his headquarters. We had a lot of fun and he won."

She then helped in the "Dollars for Democrats" and she sort of drifted into her present job.

OUTSTANDING SERVICE AWARD -- Mae Stover, executive secretary of Democratic Headquarters, holds the award she was given by the State Democratic party. It is the George Miller Jr. award and she is the second recipient.

Mae has worked in all phases of the Democratic party structure. She has known many of the party leaders and has a treasured scrapbook with many personal pictures and notes.

Asked to name her favorite politicians in the party, she smiled, "All of them." She will allude to the fact that maybe the Kennedy brothers were beloved.

This lively lady proves that dedication to a cause can keep you young and enthusiastic.

Ask anyone in the Democratic party who can get things done efficiently and graciously and they'll say, "Mae Stover."

P & R to name chairman

They'll go it alone

The Parks and Recreation Commission has voted to select its own chairman rather than have a councilman appointed by the Mayor.

The group also voted to move its meeting hour from 4 to 7:30 p.m. with the day to be selected at the next P & R meeting May 25.

These actions were taken at the Parks and Recreation meeting held Monday afternoon in the council chambers. Harold Cook served as temporary chairman for the meeting.

Mayor George Gibson had asked the committee if members wished to have another councilman appointed to serve on the committee or to chair the committee. The members decided to go it alone and select their own chairman. This will be the first time after a council election that the group has had an opportunity to become self governing.

The committee reviewed the Recreation budget with George Schilens, recreation director, and voted to add $4,500 for contingencies to the present $30,775 budget.

Schilens reviewed the budget item by item and explained the present recreation programs to the committee. City Manager Elwin Alder presented a survey on Parks and Recreation that included cities in the surrounding areas and also told the committee that a five cent tax was levied by each of the school districts in Upland: Upland Elementary, Chaffey Union High School District, and Chaffey College District, and said some $90,000 was being lost to the city in recreation funding by now having the money spent for recreation in the city.

The P & R committee voted to conduct a further study to see if the money can be channeled back into the city -- since the taxpayers are paying 15 cents total to the school districts.

The group also agreed to look into the money spent in parkways and to assess the possibility of cutting back some trees along busy intersections so that motorists may better see oncoming traffic.

Upland News wins Press Club awards

The Upland News has won first place for General Excellence among non-daily newspapers in the Twin Counties Press Club's annual awards contest.

The paper, written and edited by Mrs. Jenny Kirkpatrick, also won three other prizes, including another first prize for editorials submitted by non-dailies.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick won a third-place award in the Best Feature Story, non-daily division.

The judge's comment for the general excellence award stated: "I like the editorial leadership, something for the most part lacking in the other newspapers submitted in the competition."

"The photos were good, and this seemed like a true community newspaper, a fact apparent by the extensive coverage provided. The staff is saluted for making this effort fruitful."

The Twin Counties Press Club contest was open to news and public relations media in San Bernardino and Riverside Counties. Awards were announced last Friday at a banquet at El Rancho Verde Country Club in Rialto.

Besides the two first-place awards, The Upland News won a second place in the Public Service Citation category for all newspapers, for a series of stories about the Upland Boys Club, and a third place for editorials submitted by non-dailies.

The Upland News is published by Bonita Publishing Co., which also publishes the Cucamonga Times and The Montclair Tribune in San Bernardino County, as well as The Bulletin, serving Diamond Bar, Walnut Valley and Rowland Heights, The San Dimas Press and The La Verne Leader, all in Los Angeles County.

The Upland News was the only Bonita paper to enter the Twin Counties Press Club contest.

There will also be a presentation by Sal Castro, controversial Los Angeles High School teacher.

A "Dance for all Seasons" is scheduled for Friday, May 8, at 9 p.m., in the cafeteria. The dance will be hosted by Chaffey's Movimiento Estudiantil Chicano de Aztlan, (MECHA), and admission will be $1.50, or $1 with an Associated Student Body card.

There will be no charge for admission to any of the other events of Semana de la Raza. The program is offered by the college as a community service in cooperation with the campus chapter of MECHA. Further information concerning Semana de la Raza may be obtained by contacting the college.

National Orange Show a success

The 55th National Orange Show which closed recently drew a total attendance of 357,437 for the 11-day run. This was an increase of 7,154 over last year.

The 1970 show ranks fourth in the all-time attendance records behind the expositions of 1966, 1968 and 1965. The 1966 record attendance was 379,188.

Perfect weather prevailed for the entire run of the 1970 show, one of the few times there has been no rain. In 1966 the show had a "no rain" run. Mid-day temperatures were in the high 70s or low 80s during the whole show.

As the last of the fairgoers left the grounds Sunday night, 1970 President John M. Van Horn termed this year's show a resounding success from every standpoint.

Election aides sought for June primary

Do you live within San Bernardino County?

Would you like to be a part of an event that will be publicized in all newspapers? Would you like to meet all of your neighbors while being paid for doing this?

If your answer is "yes" to these questions, then you should make your application to serve as a precinct election officer or make application to use your home or building as a polling place for the June 2 Primary Election.

Wm. H. Clinton, registrar of voters for San Bernardino County, advises that those interested in applying contact the Registrar of Voters Office, 646 Sierra Way, San Bernardino, Calif. 92401, 889-0111 immediately.

The requirement to serve as a precinct election board member is to be a registered voter eligible to vote in the Primary Election. The pay for judges and clerks is $17 and for inspectors, $20.

A suitable polling place should be a single room containing a minimum of 225 square feet of usable space, have adequate heat and light, be easily accessible to the voters and have adequate safe parking. Twelve dollars is paid for the use of a polling place.

CHAMBER MEETING -- Newly-elected Mayor Pro-Tem John McCarthy, Capt. Pete Smith, Upland Police Department, and Walter Reardon, Chamber president, gather after the chamber breakfast to discuss the film, "The Shoplifter" Capt. Smith showed as program feature.

EARTH DAY -- Cabrillo School sixth graders participated in Earth Day by cleaning up the trash in the culvert across the street from their school. The class was under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. June Presson.

Changing attitude

A welcome change in attitude regarding citizen participation in Upland's city government was voiced this week when Mayor George Gibson said he is inviting applications for at least one opening on a city committee.

Specifically, Gibson is inviting interested citizens to apply for a seat on the Planning Commission. But the mayor added that he would like applications from persons who would be interested in serving on other city groups as well.

The Upland News applauds this move by Mayor Gibson to get others in the city involved in the local government process. Too many times the policies of the city appeared to have been made in a vacuum, that is, by a limited number of persons who occasionally lost touch with the general public.

But Monday's announcement by the mayor that he is seeking applications from others in the community to serve on various city agencies as openings occur hopefully will result in government participation by a wider base of citizens in Upland.

It was Upland's failure to take this kind of step in the past that recently prompted us to tell one city official here that the city has given the appearance of being run as if it were a private club.

The worst abuse of this private-club syndrome showed up in the selection of the city mayor. When we criticized the council three weeks ago for making deals, it was the jostling and prodding that went on within the council for the title of mayor to which we referred.

In two years, the voters of Upland will choose their mayor for the first time, thus ending the deal-making for that office by council members.

And in the meantime with Mayor Gibson's invitation, still others in the community will be encouraged to help run the city. We view both developments as a welcome change.

A Little Bit

OF THIS AND THAT

By Bob Evans

Friday, May 1, is Law Day, sponsored by the American Bar Association and its local affiliates to promote respect for the law.

Unfortunately, it takes more than one day each year to keep individuals committed to the realization that law is vital to individuals and their communities.

Another sad but obvious point is that individuals or organizations who have no respect for the law won't change their attitudes or philosophy as a result of Law Day.

So the value of Law Day must lie as a reminder to the rest of us that we must respect and uphold the law.

What is it that makes law vital to society? Law provides an orderly way for both individuals and organizations to function. It means that after you arrange to purchase something "on time", you are confident that your payments won't be increased after you receive the merchandise.

It means that if you are stopped by a police officer for speeding, you won't be taken off to jail and left there for months or even days on end.

But "law" shouldn't mean something that cannot be changed. We all should keep in mind that where laws exist which we don't like, we have an opportunity and an obligation to change the law, but never abandon it.

Current Comments

During the past few years, a sizable group of people known as general aviation pilots has been subjected to rising pressure for stringent regulation of airways and airports aimed at drastically curbing general aviation use of these facilities.

The erroneous notion has been widely held that general aviation pilots are an irresponsible fraternity of barnstormers and that general aviation itself is of little consequence in the overall transportation picture. The facts are different. In the first place, every pilot in his right mind is deeply concerned with air safety; and, secondly, thousands of privately-owned planes from Piper Cubs to corporate jets are indispensable business tools for companies large and small throughout the U.S. Workable procedures must be developed in order that both general aviation and the scheduled airlines may use the airways safely.

Fortunately, there are signs of an awakening to this necessity. According to a leading general aviation publication, The AOPA Pilot: "Knowledgeable aviation writers for a number of newspapers and radio and television stations have been raising their voices...in an attempt to provide the general public with a measure of objective and factual reporting on the condition of the nation's air transportation system." If such proves to be the case, the cause of aviation safety will have taken a tremendous step forward, and hundreds of thousands of pilots may regain the most important civil right of all - a fair hearing.

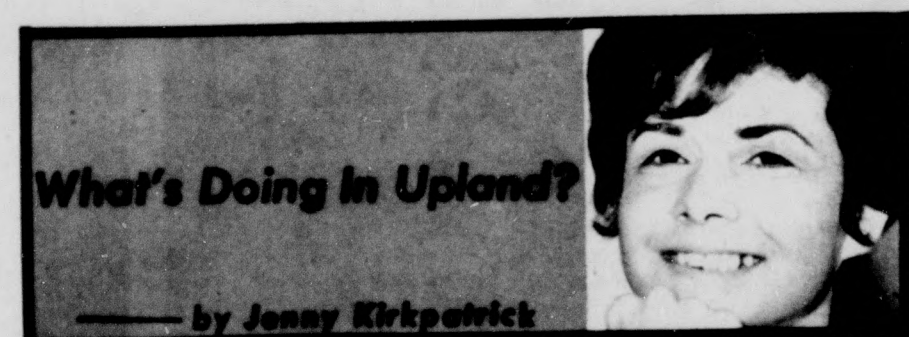

GREAT HONOR

In our work, the bouquets come few and far between, so it was a real thrill to sit at the Awards banquet given by the Twin Counties Press Club Friday night and hear my newspaper and name called so many times. It was like landing on the moon, Christmas and all of the dreams coming true. We had hoped for at least one prize for our crusade on the Boys Club, but to have gotten first place in General Excellence in the non-daily class with a commendation from the judges as being an outstanding paper, made all of the long, long hours of work worth it. Of course, one does not win honors without a lot of help from many, many people. So I say thanks to my bosses, Bob Bush and Bob Evans who gave us the go-ahead to do many interesting things with our paper, and to my co-worker Janlee Brooks, who encouraged me to carry them out and lent her support in helping me carry them out and most of all to the people of Upland who have cooperated and been so wonderful to work for. I shall never forget that great Friday night.

EARTH DAY

It was delightful to see the enthusiasm of the school children as they cleaned up areas around town during Earth Day. They learned a lot from the experience and we learned that Upland is a favorite place for beer drinkers to throw their cans, at least that is what was found most often by the clean-up crews.

Also hats off to the 16 girls of Brownie Troop 1049 of Cabrillo School who took the time off on a Saturday to clean up the Benson Avenue area. Their leaders are Mrs. Tom Ishi, Mrs. Kenneth Walsh, Mrs. Anthony Flis and Mrs. Boyd Oliphant.

FRANCIS AVENUE SINGERS

You would have to go a long way to find a more dedicated and talented group than the Francis Avenue Singers. These fine people have worked diligently to build a band shell memorial in Memorial Park and they are nearing their goal. They have a new record with which they hope to sell and complete their goal. It is called The Francis Avenue Singers Sing and has many of their favorites on it. Contact one of the singers, they'll be glad to see that you get the record.

HATS OFF

SA Hospital holds annual meeting

Among the highlights of the 50th Annual Meeting of the San Antonio Community Hospital Association was the election of ten new members: Samuel Crowe, Frank E. Finalyson, William R. Granewich, Nelson Gray, William S. Hammel, Frank Lesinsky, Billy Metcalfe, L. J. Parker, M. D., Roy H. Person, and George W. Vinnedge.

Re-elected to the Board of Trustees were the four senior members currently serving on the Board: J. Awdry Armstrong, Allan S. Barr, Frank C. Melone, M.D., and Harold Stewart. Both Armstrong, Board President, and Barr, Board Treasurer, acknowledged the hospital's past achievements while also noting the future challenges created by expanding services and broader objectives.

John Towers, Administrator, alluded to his written annual report and emphasized that the hospital must focus on solving the medical problem of the era, "the containment of health care costs while assuring the accessibility of optimum care."

The evening's guest speaker was Richard L. Johnson, Vice-president of A. T. Kearney and Company, Inc., a nationally-known management consulting firm which is completing the hospital's long-range master plan.

Johnson's comments, "Health Care Trends in the '70's," predicted increasing physician shortages, rising costs, rapid growth of proprietary hospitals, and continued pressure for a national health scheme.

During his concluding remarks, Johnson suggested that American hospitals are managed more efficiently than the public realizes, and he noted that the present system is "quite possibly more efficient and less costly than any other that can be devised."

Methodists to hear drug problem speaker

Speaking on one of the major problems of today, Rev. Eugene McDowell will bring an interesting and informative message at the United Methodist Church, Cucamonga, on Sunday May 3, at 11 A.M.

Recent reports indicate that approximately twenty percent of the national narcotic problem exists in the State of California, and that Southern California is rapidly emerging as the number one narcotic problem area in the nation. Government statistics reveal the existence of tens of thousands of heroin addicts in our nation. Though this is the strongest of all known narcotics, there are numerous other substances and derivatives which also cause addiction and habituation.

The speaker will be representing the Narcotic Educational Foundation of America which has been located and active in the Los Angeles area for over 25 years.

PULSE of the PLAID

To Live or Die-- It's Our Own Choice!

Along with the millions of concerned youth throughout the nation who participated in Earth Day activities, UHS Highlanders also presented an ecology program emphasizing the necessity of improving our environment.

While the adults of today's affluent American society drove their smog machines to work, many of our students rode bicycles, skateboards, and horses to school. There were also students who walked and skated many miles to show that there definitely exists a concern among the young adults of today for the preservation of our earth.

Two UHS students, Susan Walker and Marta Kaufman, created and displayed a flag of white and green stripes, symbolizing fertility, and an ensign of the Greek letter omega, symbolizing the end.

Highlighting the day's activities was an assembly presented in the gymnasium by English department chairman Mr. Calvin French and a group of students. Slides of our ever-changing environment were shown with a musical accompaniment by Dave Lombard and Diane Santarelli.

Marshall E. Webb, superintendent of the Chino Basin Municipal Water District was a guest speaker at the assembly. Webb stated, "When man tries to fight against nature, nature in turn will fight back. And she'll win. Every time she'll win." He stressed that a balance between nature is always necessary. When this balance is upset, pollution results.

Perhaps unknown to many, the grave problem of the disposal of livestock waste exists. According to Webb, in the Chino Basin Municipal Water District there are 78,626 heads of cattle, averaging 63 cows per acre.

Each day, one cow leaves 80 pounds of waste material, totaling 6,300,000 pounds in a single day. And what is done with the waste? Nothing. The only waste treatment plant for cows is nature.

In closing, Webb stated, "I, as a father, would like to publicly apologize for the degraded state of our land, air, and water you're inheriting from us inefficient wasteful adults. The challenge of your life is that you leave a better inheritance to your children than we left to you."

Three of our own students spoke to the congregated body of students on involvement to clean up our earth. Sol Feldman, a freshman, explained how man was killed not by nuclear attack or political dominance, but by himself and the menace stronger than Hitler, pollution.

"Our Moment in the Sun" was the topic of Ellen Lieberg's speech. She emphasized that mankind, like the sun and a candle, can burn out and destroy itself. Also making a presentation was Viki Hollander, who read an article titled "War Against the Trees."

The assembly concluded with a film, "The Grand Canyon," presented by the Sierra Club. It dealt with the beauty of nature that is slowly being destroyed.

Another Earth Day activity was the selling of cookies, cupcakes, brownies and other little delicacies in an English teacher's classroom. The money raised from this project was then given to Mr. French to buy trees for the vast wasteland on our own campus.

Earth Day has come and gone. But let us hope and pray that it is not the end of this united concern for the improvement of our earth. Our children must live and eat and breathe, but they will only be able to do so if we clean up our spaceship, the earth.

Local residents aid Cancer crusade drive

Mrs. Thomas A. Gibson and Paul Hottel, both of Upland, read the message that is being currently distributed throughout the city during the American Cancer Society's annual crusade.

Hottel, Upland Business Crusade chairman, announced the April fund-raising campaign is well under way, hoping to reach this city's goal of $15,000. "Progress is being made as long as people continue to support the Society's program of Research, Education and Service," he stated. "Researchers tell us that developments during the sixties have been so dramatic it is entirely conceivable that the final conquest of cancer can be a crowning achievement of this present generation."

Mrs. Gibson, an American Cancer Society volunteer for many years, is now Area Director for the San Bernardino County's West End Unit.

Upland's Residential chairman this year is Mrs. Gerard Rawle, directing numerous volunteers in the house-to-house and neighbor-to-neighbor campaigns.

HELPING OTHERS -- Mrs. Thomas Gibson and Paul Hottel of Upland have contributed their help to the Cancer Crusade during the organization's April drive. Hottel heads the business crusade and Mrs. Gibson has been an active volunteer for many years.

ALHS crafts teacher has article published

Clark Heiple, crafts teacher, Alta Loma High School, has had another article published in the March issue of Arts and Activities. This article, "Animal Banks", outlines the entire procedure from the preparing of the clay to the final finishing of the fired clay banks.

Alligators, hippos, rhinos, and owls were discussed as four different methods offered each individual as an opportunity to follow their own creative thoughts.

This is the 16th article to appear in a national art education magazine written by Mr. Heiple, art department chairman and crafts teacher for twenty-two years.

Upland man named

A young man from Upland who spent four years teaching and working in Kenya is the newest librarian at California State College, San Bernardino.

He is Michael R. Brown, a native of Upland but now a resident of San Bernardino.

Prior to leaving for Kenya, Brown was employed by the San Bernardino County Library in 1965. From January 1966 through the same month in 1968, he was a teacher in the Emusine Secondary School in Maseno, Kenya. The next 22 months were spent as assistant librarian at University College in Nairobi.

Brown received his A.A. degree from Chaffey College, his B.A. from Upland College and his master of science in library science from the University of Southern California.

Hiking club practices snow survival techniques

The ALHS Hiking Club recently had a short course in snow survival which ended with the building of an igloo.

The club members spent time in class learning fundamentals of cold weather survival, then went to the San Geronimo area for practical application. The hikers broke a trail through new snow for four miles to reach their bivouac site. Then the group split into teams and worked on setting-up a tent, digging a snow cave, building a fire, and igloo construction.

All projects went well except the snow cave which ran out of deep snow. An igloo is a fascinating shelter which gives the ultimate in protection against the elements. It took the members about one hour to complete the igloo and other projects.

The trek back to the cars was made by a tired group of hikers who had the satisfaction of accomplishment and enjoyment in a winter world.

Computers' use to aid employment

The "blue collar" computer--the computer that makes things and keeps assembly lines moving--will really come into its own during the next 10 years.

"Computer systems in production will become ubiquitous. By the end of the decade the smallest industrial plant will be a prime computer user," G. C. Turner, general manager of Hagan/Computer Systems Division of Westinghouse, told a UCLA Extension symposium.

Automation will increase in many areas of commerce and industry Turner said, from factories and foundries to warehouses and grocery stores.

What is needed, however, Turner added, is more confidence in computers. As an example of what can be done when "complete reliance by management" exists, he described a computerized warehouse in which the only way cranes and loaders are operated is by computer signals, and "no manual inventory records are kept." The computer does everything.

Turner emphasized that automation is not going to put man out of work.

"The ghost of automation keeps reappearing," he said, "although economists have proven that unemployment is lowest when productivity is highest."

More computers working factories would mean greater productivity, and "people will get better jobs--they will not be out of a job."

Turner spoke at the symposium, "Expanding Use of Computers in the '70s," attended at UCLA by more than 200 computer industry engineers, executives and salesmen.

League elects new officers, plans year

The League of Women Voters of West San Bernardino County held its April 9 annual meeting recently at the Upland Public Library. New officers and directors were elected, and a local study item for the current year was adopted.

Newly elected officers are Mrs. Harold McLaughlin, Ontario, second vice president, and Mrs. Floy Madden, Chino, treasurer. Continuing in office to complete two year terms are Mrs. Ned Carter, Chino, president, and Mrs. A. G. Wedin, first vice president and A. M. Hawkins, Jr., secretary, both of Upland.

New directors chosen are Mrs. James L. Beck, John Pierce, Robert Scudder, Upland, and Harvey Stump and S. L. Wolters, Ontario. Completing a two year term is Miss Elizabeth Schrader of Ontario.

During the coming year the League will be studying the Prado Basin area. This item is an outgrowth of longtime League interest in water quality and conservation. The study will begin with a survey of the multiple public agencies involved in dealing with conservation, flood control, development of outdoor recreation areas, and the ecology of the drainage basin, to determine the particular responsibilities of the various agencies. Up to this time no citizens' group has been involved in this type of study.

Quimby bill would post gas octane

SACRAMENTO -- Legislation to give California motorists an even break at the gasoline pumps is being proposed by Assemblyman John Quimby, D-Rialto.

The lawmaker has introduced a bill which would require all service stations to display the octane number of the fuel being dispensed at each pump.

Quimby said some automobiles manufactured today require higher octane fuel than other type vehicles while some require lower octane ratings.

"When a gasoline's octane is too low," Quimby explained, "the fuel in the combustion chamber explodes prematurely, catching the piston in mid-stroke and sending a severe jolt into the car's power system."

Quimby said when the octane is too high, no damage results, but a driver can spend up to $50 a year extra for the higher-priced gas.

The lawmaker said gas pumps now carry various labels such as "super" or "premium" without designating the octane rating which causes confusion among motorists, and using the wrong type of gasoline could cause knocking in the engine of the auto.

As a savings counselor, we suggest you look at more than the stated rate of yield of investments. If you had needed to "cash-in" your investment before maturity this past year, you would sustain substantial losses. In 1969 only Upland Savings would have returned your investment plus high earnings.

Price of food may go down

Consumers today received some good news from Bank of America -- the bank predicts a dramatic slowing in food price growth over the next few months.

"By year-end, the problems of inflation and restricted credit availability will still be with us, but in much reduced degree," the bank said in a special progress report on the U.S. economy. "Food prices, which have increased dramatically in the last few months, will slow down dramatically in the next few months. This will help slow the annual rate of consumer price growth to near 4 per cent by year-end compared with 5.6 per cent during the fourth quarter of 1969."

Economists of the world's largest bank emphasized there is no reason to fear that the inflationary psychology of the past few years will be replaced by a recessionary psychology.

Bank of America foresees a 1970 Gross National Product growth of about 5 per cent over 1969, while real growth will increase less than one per cent. The unemployment rate is expected to average 4.5 per cent, while corporate profits after taxes will drop two per cent and housing starts will dip 15 per cent.

The bank proposed a long-range plan to combat inflation. "Existing policies and laws to stimulate growth in total output must be supplemented or replaced with policies and laws designed to stimulate productivity, especially in the public and service sectors."

"In a fully employed economy, inflation can be controlled by strategic action providing incentives to stimulate individuals to produce more. This will go further toward restoring balanced economic growth than the current tactical reactions to inflation of demands for higher pay which push the economy one step higher up the inflationary ladder."

New cities 'attending' Mt. SAC

One hundred and sixty-five hometowns are represented on the Mt. San Antonio College campus this Spring semester, an increase of 17 cities over last Spring semester, but a slight drop of 6 from the Fall's 171. Total enrollment this Spring is 13,037.

The figure is an increase of 975 over last Spring, and a drop of 987 from this Fall's 14,024 figure. A slight drop in enrollment in the Spring semester is generally expected. However, the decrease has been less each Spring for the past three years. Figures show a higher rate of retention each Spring. This Spring's figure reflects students in both day and evening division programs. There are 3,919 men and 2,652 women in the day programs; and 4,205 men and 2,261 women in the evening courses.

All top ten cities retained their positions from both last Spring and this Fall semester. Pomona again ranked number one with 2,619, and La Puente takes the number three spot with 1,183.

Rock hounds have it made in Arizona county

Rock hounds really live it up in and around sections of Arizona.

Over 50 different kinds of minerals can be found in Arizona, reports the National Automobile Club, making "rock-happy" people genuinely happy.

A large percentage of these minerals turn up in Maricopa County.

Those who like to hunt for gold and silver find panning around Arizona's former mining camps much to their advantage.

Then there's the so-called Golden Triangle of Phoenix, Wickenburg, and Prescott that makes it worth while for individuals to try their luck at panning for the shiny metal.

Desirable but more common minerals here, according to NAC, come out of a rock hound's diggings. Fluorescent types, for example, produce splendid colors and patterns under black light. Agate, amethyst, beryl, jasper, opal, and you name it excite many a fortunate discoverer.

Arizona really lets rock hounds do their own thing.

1-man show

A reception for the public and friends of the college in the California State Polytechnic College, Kellogg-Voorhis, Pomona Library Friday, May 1 at 7:30 p.m. will open Excerpts from Nature's Symphony, a one-man show featuring the photography of Roy Murphy. The show will continue through Saturday, May 30.

Murphy, whose works are shown throughout the country, has been a professional photographer since 1959 and has won several national awards.

He was born in Canada and studied at the Ontario College of Art in Toronto.

Louis IX's birthday celebration

April in Paris, that most romantic of all seasons, is back by popular demand. As old as armor but as fresh as a spring bud, this year's edition stars a saint and an artist along with the usual cast of boulevardiers, pretty girls, lovers and tourists.

The saint is King Louis IX whose passing exactly 700 years ago will be marked by an April exhibition in his honor at Saint Chapelle. The plous, hardworking monarch, better known as Saint Louis, left an indelible mark on Paris. It was under his reign that Sainte Chapelle, whose stained glass windows number among the marvels of Europe, was built. Louis encouraged Robert Sorbon in the establishment of a University that was to become one of the world's great centers of learning.

Parisians will also be paying their respects in April to Henri Matisse, the master of French expressionism, on the 100th anniversary of his birth. The best of his works will be shown through the summer at the Grand Palais. The exhibition opens April 20.

But Paris has more to celebrate than anniversaries. After a harsh winter through which France and the rest of the continent sniffling and snow-plowed, spring—announced by the enlivening air of April—has finally arrived.

PFF opens new office

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies opened the new, permanent Hi-Desert Office of Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association recently. The building is located at the corner of 29 Palms Highway and Joshua Lane in Yucca Valley.

Participating in the event were Bill Betterley, Supervisor of the First District of the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors; Judge Walter W. Woods, of the 29 Palms Justice Court; Paul D. Walker, President, and Roy G. Decker, Executive Vice President of Pomona First Federal; Leo Bitterman, Vice President and Manager of the Hi-Desert Office. Walter Altnow, Hi-Desert real estate developer, acted as master of ceremonies.

'Earth day' events at Cal Poly

Environmental experts in science, business, conservation and government joined California State Polytechnic College, Kellogg-Voorhis, Pomona students, faculty and staff in a wide range of educational programs and activities for Environmental Awareness Day last Wednesday, with top billing going to Jesse Unruh, Gov. Reagan's appointments secretary Ned Hutchinson and members of the Los Angeles cast of "Hair".

The day-long program was one of hundreds which took place concurrently at schools and colleges all over the country—some to be called Earth Day, others, the Environmental Teach-In, but all designed to focus attention on the extent of our environmental problems and the urgency for solving them.

The idea for The Day belongs to Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) and Rep. Paul McCloskey (R-Calif.), who urged the organization of a student-run group in Washington, D.C., to coordinate educational activities dealing with environmental problems.

At Cal Poly, President Robert C. Kramer appeared at a noon rally in the Quad to introduce Gov. Reagan's special representative, Hutchinson's address, "Action Not Words," was sandwiched by entertainment and speeches by members of the Hair cast. Anchor man for the day's activities was to have been gubernatorial candidate Unruh, slated to speak in the Quad at 5 p.m.

A full schedule of lectures, panel discussions and films was planned by a student committee headed by Norman Hogg, graduate student in the biological sciences.

Businesses help make BBB work

The existence of the Better Business Bureau is evidence that responsible business has a conscience.

The Bureau are supported not by consumers, not by government, but by businessmen themselves who believe in the concept of self-regulation of their own advertising and selling practices — businessmen who want an honest, ethical climate in which to do business — businessmen who know that a satisfied customer means repeat business.

The aims of the Better Business Bureau are threefold:

- To protect the buying power of the consumer.
- To encourage honesty in business.
- To inform the consumer on how to do business so the consumer can buy intelligently and gain maximum satisfaction from the purchases.

Post-probation court hearing recommended

SACRAMENTO - Assemblyman John Quimby, D-Rialto, has introduced legislation requiring persons placed on probation on a criminal conviction to return to court at the end of their probationary period to be formally released from the control of the court.

Quimby said his bill eliminates the existing court procedure whereby probationers are automatically released from court custody at the end of their term of probation.

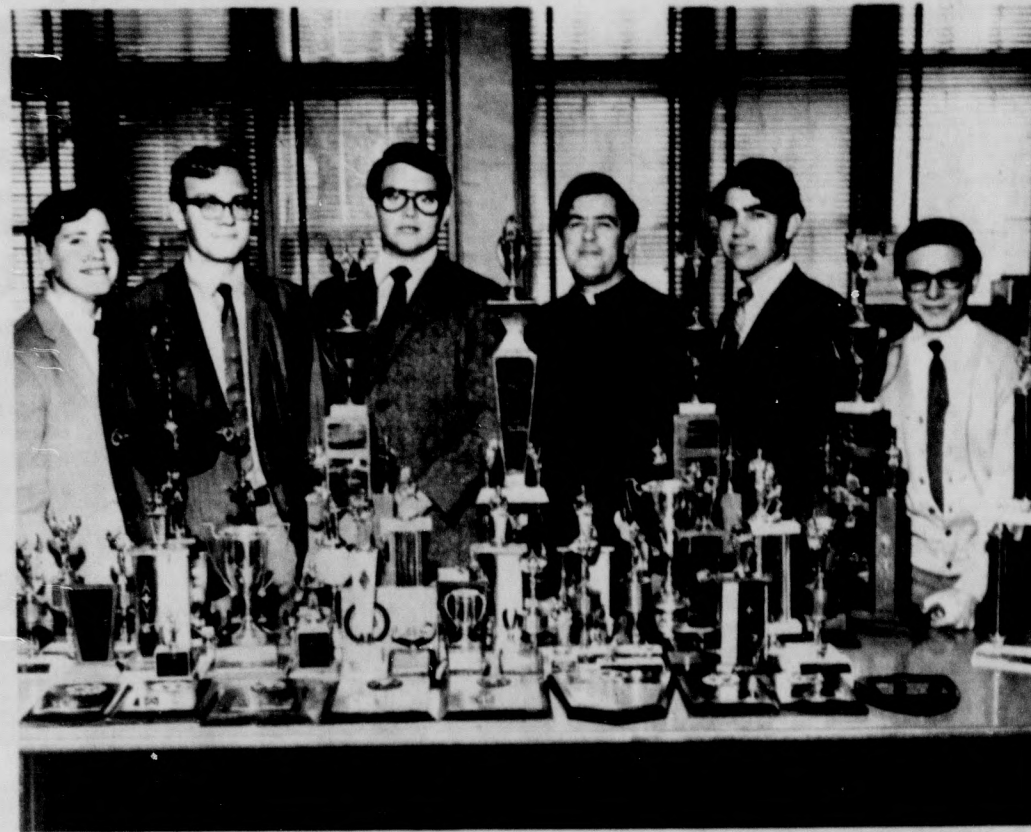

"My bill would place a firm hold on the individual during his probationary period," the lawmaker said. "Present procedure does not require the court to review the probationary record of the individual nor formally release the person from the court's supervision."

Quimby said his proposal would do much to impress upon the person on probation that he should maintain an excellent record during the term of probation.

"Hopefully this will decrease the number of individuals who have violated probation and have been returned to jail," he said.

Little things can help improve our ecology

Enjoyment of urban living will get a boost as consequences become apparent of the new stress on ecology, the science of man and other organisms to his environment.

Participating in nature ranks high on the list of satisfactions for most of us. Walks through woods with sunlight dancing on our path, gurgling water over rocks, a grassy bank, these are pleasures that too often are beyond the daily reach of city dwellers. They needn't be.

A walk through wooded areas can be through a park as well as a forest, with birds, insects, water and grass contributing to the same kind of satisfaction. This possibility in planning our community's future is getting more attention, and should.

Landscaping is a symptom. We see more effective use of trees, shrubs and plants to offer this enjoyment of nature with our buildings. As a Realtor, I know that a house that is well landscaped and shows care and enjoyment of the landscaping is worth more on the market than one that is not. The increase in value is out of proportion to the cost of the plants and whatever professional or skilled amateur effort put them there.

Architects and landscape architects usually work together on planning public buildings and surroundings, often from the stage when they are looking over the site. This is a step toward bringing city dwellers in closer contact with nature in a pleasing way.

We should watch for opportunities to bring this further into our city lives by applying our concern for ecology to public areas as well. Public walkways don't always have to be ruler straight strips of concrete in a 15-foot border to streets lined with parked automobiles. This may be easier to draw on a plat map and easier for the surveyor, but it isn't easier on our sensibilities as we walk.

There is a welcome trend by subdividers and public officials to bring variety into such situations. Streets curve. Houses are not set like so many line up dominoes. Parkways vary in width, plunging sometimes into small odd-shaped parks. Strollways may not be against streets at all, but between the backs of houses, winding there among trees, no autos allowed.

Once we recognize what we're up to, bringing nature, unpolluted, into city life, what we can do is

SP officer joins PC trustees

CLAREMONT - Alan C. Furth, 47-year-old vice president and general counsel of the Southern Pacific Company, has been elected to the Pomona College board of trustees, announced H. Russell Smith, San Marino chairman of the board.

A resident of Piedmont, Furth is a native Californian who was born in Oakland and received his elementary and high school training at Davis, his A.B. degree at the University of California, Berkeley, and his law degree in 1949 from the same institution.

As an undergraduate, he was editor of the campus newspaper, The Daily Californian, and while in law school, he was a member of the board of editors of the California Law Review.

Firm honors long-time employees

Twenty-three long-time employees of the Southern California Gas Co. received awards at the utility's annual San Bernardino Division service recognition dinner at the Redlands Country Club.

Thirty-year employees Donald Bailey, Richard Boyd, George Parks, Henry Robertson and Ronald Throckmorton headed the list of those honored.

Eleven division employees were given 25-year awards. Three others received 20-year awards and four employees were honored for 15 years of service.

Over-all this year, the Southern California Gas Co. is paying tribute to 505 employees who have 15, 20, 25, 30 or 40 years of service. Sixty-seven of those being honored have been with the company for 30 years.

PE center dedicated

CLAREMONT - Formal dedication ceremonies for Pomona College's new $565,000 Gladys Shepard Pendleton Women's Physical Education Center were held during the college's annual Alumni Day activities April 18.

Dr. David Alexander, president of Pomona College, presided during the brief ceremony, conducted at the new center, east of and adjacent to the Galdys S. Pendleton Swimming Pool and south of the women's dormitories.

Dr. Alexander unveiled a bronze plaque honoring Mrs. Pendleton and her husband, Morris B. Pendleton, San Marino, president of Pendleton Tool Industries, Inc., and a Pomona College trustee, whose gift of $250,000 substantially aided in construction.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

PRE-ZONE CHANGE NO. 3

Monday, May 4, 1970 — 7:00 P.M.

Council Chambers, Upland City Hall

The City Council of the City of Upland has received a request for rezoning and annexation on property located near the Northwest corner of Mountain Ave. and 16th St. The property, in more detail, is in an unincorporated territory of San Bernardino County, described as 20.41 acres with its East line located about 507 ft. West of Mountain Ave. and its South line at the present City Limit about 660 ft. North of the Westerly extension of 17th St.

It is the wish of the applicant to pre-zone this property to R-3-3600 (Multiple Family Residential — 30,000 sq. ft. minimum lot area) so that there can be a multiple family use of this property. If annexation is successful, the owner intends to apply for a Conditional Use Permit to use the property for a Mobile Home Park.

You are invited as neighbors in the area to attend this meeting and express your views.

Old west captured by artist

In 2,739 drawings and 25 sculptures the master artist of the Old West captured the history of a people who survived on courage alone.

Frederick Remington was that artist, a dedicated man who depicted things the way they really were through a rough and rugged style much like the jagged mesas and hills that provided his settings. For his subjects, Remington sought out tough and spirited characters, whites or Indians or horses.

Remington did not grow up in the West. He was born in Canton, New York, in 1871. But he dreamed his childhood away, dreamed of cowboys and Indians. All the while he was drawing them, he vowed he would join them when of age.

True to his vow, he quit college at the age of 19 and went out West, where he taught himself to live like an average cowboy. How else would he be able to catch the real spirit of the Old West?

Riding proved no problem. Already an expert at this, Remington never appeared happier than when on horseback. In fact, his "Bronco Buster" bronze has never been equaled by any other sculpture of a bucking horse.

Other skills he learned quickly. Soon Remington could throw a lariat and handle a six-gun as well as most. And his willingness to use his powerful fists whenever necessary gained him the respect of others.

Watch those sales

When "Sale Shopping", you'll want to get there early, so you'll have a good selection of the advertised specials. However, don't be carried away just because "it's a bargain".

Bear in mind that what you buy on sale usually cannot be returned, so be sure of the size, color, dimensions and usability, before spending your money. Also, the greater the markdown from the original price, the more sharp-eyed you should be.

Be cautious when you see claims of "unbelievable savings". Look carefully for damage and defects of workmanship. Should the item be guaranteed, check to see of the guarantee is extended during the sale. If so, get it in writing.

Great buys can generally be made on seasonal items when business establishments select not to use valuable storage space to hold-over merchandise until next year. For more tips on how to get your money's worth, get the book, "Consumer's Buying Guide" from your local Better Business Bureau.

SACRAMENTO - Legislation to streamline the role of the state Public Utilities Commission in its supervision of private and public utilities in California has been offered by Assemblyman John Quimby, D-Rialto.

The measure requires the commission to divide its staff work into three sections based on the monetary amounts involved.

Quimby said one section would handle cases involving $5,000 or more; a second section would be responsible for cases from $500 to $5,000 and the third section would handle cases involving money less than $500.

'Streamlining' of PUC urged

Emphasis, Quimby said, would be placed on those cases involving more than $5,000.

"I and other legislators have received numerous complaints that the PUC spends a considerable amount of time on minor cases which not only costs taxpayers money but also costs the small utility districts a good deal of time and funds."

Quimby said many small water districts are being forced to spend money unnecessarily because of "the unwarranted bureaucratic procedures established by the PUC."

"The minor cases should be handled fairly and with expedience," he said, "so that more time could be devoted to those major, complicated cases."

Traffic increase at OIA

ONTARIO - Passenger traffic totaling 64,875 travelers at Ontario International Airport during March 1970 exceeded February 1970's by 13.1 percent and exceeded March 1969 by 21.6 percent.

According to Robert M. Hamilton Jr., airport manager, scheduled airline activities were responsible for most of the increase during March.

Total for the first quarter of 1970 reached 182,027 passengers. This showed a 13.6 percent increase over 1969's first quarter total of 160,253.

Hamilton estimated that the prediction 1 million plus passengers this year seemed assured. Additional major airline service is scheduled to start at Ontario during the next two months and passenger traffic figures will undoubtedly show a sharp up-turn as a result.

Scheduled flights at the west end air facility represented 22.7 percent of the 13,066 total aircraft operations during March 1970. In March 1969 scheduled flights made up only 16.5 percent of the 15,984 operations logged.

Air freight loaded at Ontario International Airport totaled 66,777 pounds during March 1970. Air express added up to 4,381 pounds.

When the swing set was being assembled last summer, chances are salvation came from the illustration, after all hope was gone from the written instructions. And most likely, drawings were the guides for building the dog house and the summer lounge chair for the patio.

The same people who save the sanity of the do-it-yourself buffs, draw precision illustrations of rocket engines, pistols, and veins, arteries, and nerves surrounding the heart.

Technical Illustrators Management Association, a group of artists who create these illustrations, are currently showing their creative, detailed works at the California Museum of Science and Industry, Exposition Park, Los Angeles, through April 26. The renderings range from designs for magazine covers, to medical anatomy paintings, from space photographs to mechanical cartoons.

Among the winners in the 17th Annual TIMA Competition in the display are: Eric Peterson, McDonnell-Douglas Corporation, first place, multi-color illustration; and Larry Chan, Lockheed,

C-P starts screening candidates

Applications for admission to the California State Polytechnic College, Kellogg - Voorhis, Pomona master of business administration (MBA) program are now being accepted and screened by the college's School of Business Administration.

Dr. Louis Kaufman, dean of Business Administration, said that Cal Poly, Pomona is in the process of selecting the first students for its MBA program, and coordinating faculty assignments to handle the evening classes being scheduled for the graduate business courses.

In contrast to a department organized graduate degree program, Cal Poly's MBA is schoolwide and covers all functional areas of business. Kaufman said that Cal Poly, Pomona decided to offer the broadly based MBA program after an extensive study of the graduate education needs of local communities showed that many persons interested in a graduate business program did not have undergraduate degrees in the field.

"As far as employers are concerned," said Kaufman, "the MBA degree is an indicator of a broad and sophisticated understanding of business and of the approaches to handling business problems. Many firms now require the master's degree for a number of jobs; and, other things being equal, the employee with the advanced degree experiences the most rapid promotion rate."

Any holder of a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university is eligible for graduate study in the Cal Poly School of Business Administration, said Kaufman. Those graduate students admitted to the Cal Poly MBA program will be given one year to demonstrate their ability to meet the academic standards of the school and college.

Admission to classified graduate standing and candidacy for a master's degree requires either outstanding achievement in undergraduate studies or satisfactory performance as a Cal Poly, Pomona graduate student.

Cal Poly's School of Business Administration is one of five schools of the college: Arts, Agriculture, Business, Engineering, and Science. In addition to its MBA program, the school offers the bachelor of science degree in accounting; business management; data processing; finance, insurance and real estate; and marketing. Curricular options and concentrations are also offered in industrial management and office management.

'Gnostic' study underway at CGS

CLAREMONT - Scholars at Claremont Graduate School are learning about Gnosticism, a little-known religion of antiquity, by translating 13 books written in the Coptic language in the 4th and 5th centuries A.D.

Coptic, the written language of the earliest Egyptian Christians, consists of ancient Egyptian words in old Greek letters. The books are written on 52 papyrus documents or "tractates." They were found by a group of peasants about 20 years ago in a jar buried in a cemetery near Nag Hammadi, Egypt. They are now stored under plexiglass in a Cairo library.

Based at the Institute for Antiquity and Christianity at Claremont, a team of scholars has photographed the tractates and translated them, bit by bit, into modern English. The project is directed by Dr. James M. Robinson, a professor at the Graduate School, and is supported this year by a $16,300 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The Gnostics, who left papyrus books, were considered heretics by the orthodox Christians of their time. Until now, most of what was known about them came from the writings of their critics. The findings in these books underline their real importance.

Gnosticism carries the notion that individual salvation comes about by knowledge rather than by faith or works. "The Gnostics were the intellectual eggheads of their time," explains Dr. Robinson.

One of the books, a letter from Peter, the apostle, to Philip, describes an appearance of Jesus Christ not recorded in the Bible. He appeared to a group of apostles at the Mount of Olives as a burning light, and he told the apostles what to do to achieve resurrection and how to avoid the wiles of the Evil One. Gnostic teaching presents the resurrected Christ consistently as a light rather than as a physically resurrected being.

The deity presented as light is a familiar concept to the orthodox church. Paul was converted by a "light." The transfiguration story also has this element in it. But the Gnostic emphasis created a struggle within the church. When the orthodox church eventually won out, Gnosticism was practically forgotten.

Because no dictionary of early Coptic existed when the project began, the Claremont scholars had to figure out much of the spelling, grammar and meaning of words as they worked. Damaged sections of the tractates made the job even more complicated; some were in pieces, others only partially complete. Even the order of the pages was a puzzle at times. In spite of the difficulties, 49 of the 52 tractates have now been put into English.

The group plans to complete a four-volume edition of the work by the end of 1970. The results of the study are being computerized so that a complete vocabulary of the language, as known so far, can be printed. Plans are being made to return to the cemetery where these books were found to conduct an archaeological dig in search of more material.

Review of parole policies asked

SACRAMENTO -- Assemblyman John V. Briggs (R-Orange and San Bernardino Counties) has introduced a house resolution, directing the Adult Authority to conduct a study and review of its policies regarding the parole of offenders who have committed crimes against law enforcement officers.

Briggs' resolution was prompted by the recent killings of four California Highway Patrolmen on April 5. Briggs said, "The shocking murder of these young men certainly demands a study of this type. I have only the greatest respect for the Adult Authority and the work they do."

This resolution, he said, is to serve as a directive from the Legislature to have a report of their policies relating to offenders who have committed assault on police officers.

'Free choice' plan for school finance

SACRAMENTO -- A "free choice" system of education in California has been introduced into the legislature by Assemblyman William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights.

The former school administrator and member of the Assembly Education Committee re-introduced the novel proposal after it was refused approval last year by legislative committees.

"If my plan did anything last year," he explained, "it brought attention to the fact that the present system of financing education in California is costly and ineffective. Since my proposal was first made public, I have received numerous correspondence from educators and parents who are not only interested in the plan but are actively supporting it."

Campbell's proposal establishes a free choice system whereby students would be issued vouchers which would be turned over to the school of his choice--public or private--as payment for his education.

Revenue to finance the voucher system would be derived from a statewide property tax.

Campbell said his proposal could not be implemented until voters, through a constitutional amendment, approved such a plan.

Campbell said the dilemma facing educators today is not only limited to the public school system but also to private schools which are losing their students to public schools because of the high cost of education.

"Private schools have played an important role in education in California," the lawmaker said, "but their role is steadily decreasing which means that there will continue to be an influx of students into the public school system, placing a larger burden on the taxpayer."

Campbell said if the student were given his choice of schools--public or private--it would provide competition within the education marketplace resulting in an elevation of educational standards.

The plan would be applicable for all students from kindergarten through twelfth grade, Campbell said.

"Our entire democratic system was built on the premise of free choice," he said. "What better way to recognize such a principle than through our educational process?"

Driving errors

Excessive speeding, failing to adjust to driving conditions, and keeping improper following distances are reported by National Automobile Club to be the three most likely, as well as most deadly, driving errors made by pros.

Fridays 'unlucky' for Scots

Coach Herb Christian of Upland High is declaring Fridays null and void. His Highlanders have yet to have a good Friday afternoon, recording two losses and a pair of ties. Their latest Friday escapade went ten innings and was called because of darkness. It ended in a tie with Claremont, 5-5.

Even though nobody is happy with a tie, both clubs picked up one-half game on the league leader, as Chino was dumped by Garey.

For a moment, it looked like the Highlanders would break the jinx when they scored an unearned run in the top of the 10th. With two out, Doug Feaster blooped a single to shallow left center, moving Rick Hutton to third. But Hutton didn't stop at third forcing a wild throw which allowed him to score.

The Wolfpack's Mike Tracey then reached first on an error, one of the Highlander's five, and was sacrificed to second. Tim Cox then dropped another blooper in almost the same spot as Feaster's allowing Tracey to knot the score.

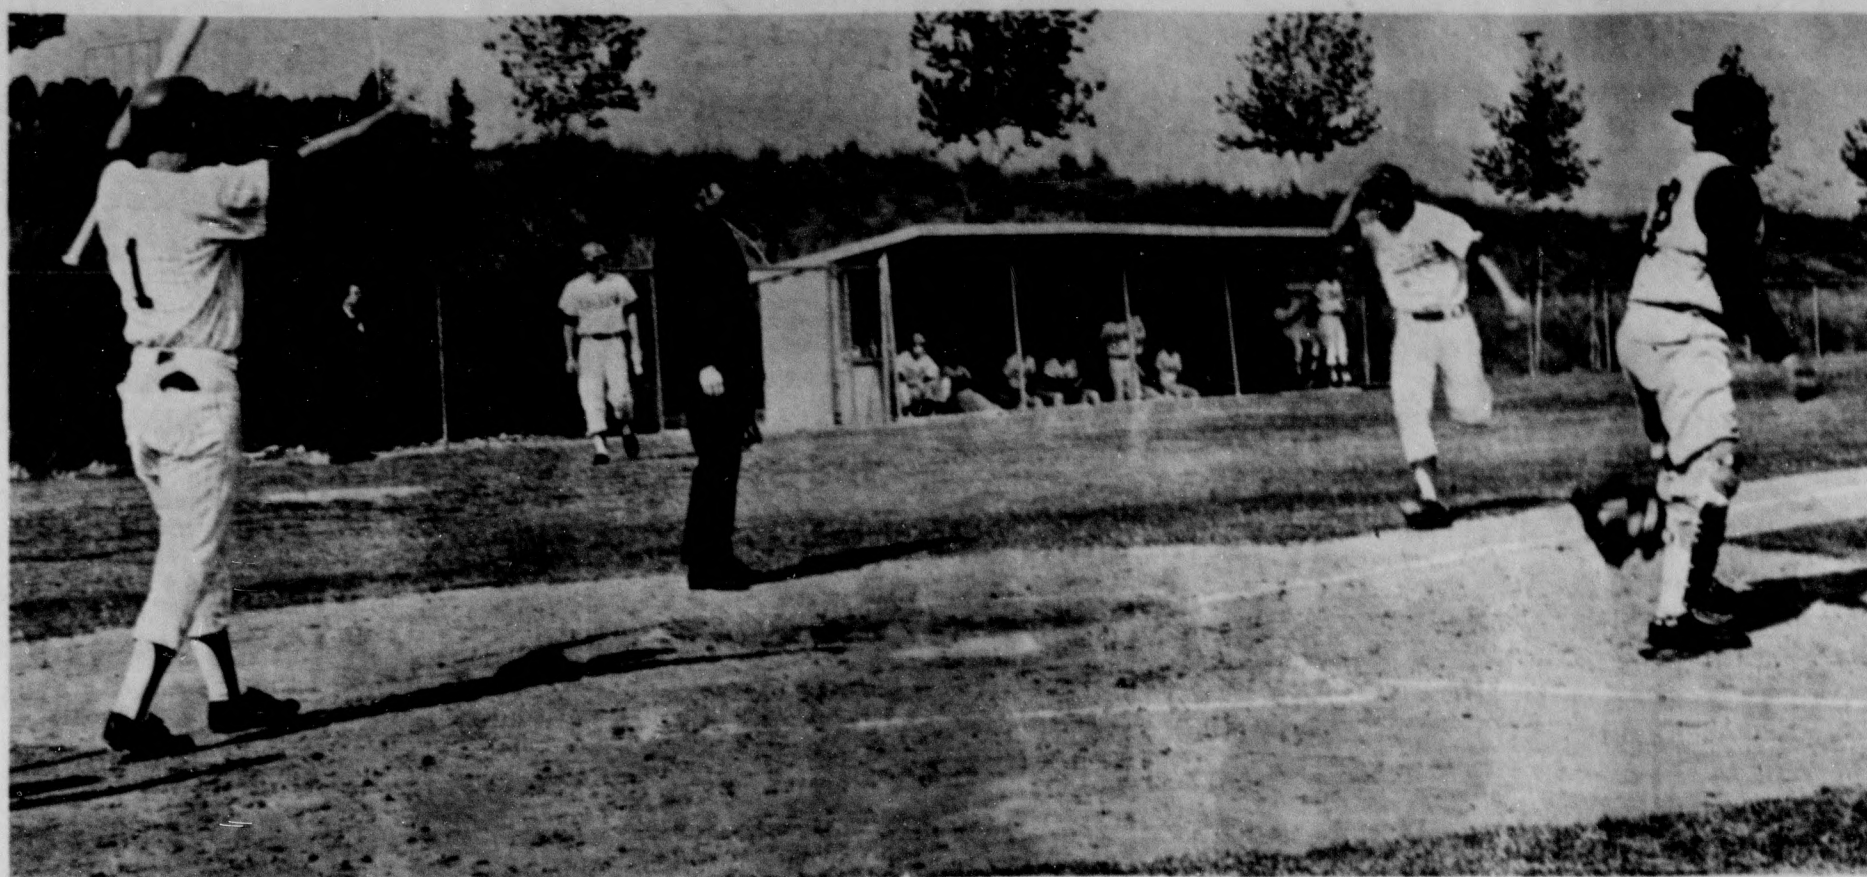

Eric Frazier sparked Upland past Pomona, 7-6, with a pair of home runs. His two blasts accounted for four of the Highlanders' scores and dismissed any hopes of a Red Devil victory.

His first round-tripper came in the initial inning with Pat Wise aboard. He repeated the performance in the third frame, again with Wise aboard.

Upland scored their two winning tallies in the fourth inning behind two Pomona mixups. Feaster singled to start things off, and Kendall Scott reached first when the Red Devils tried to get Feaster at second, but failed.

After a wild pitch moved the runners up a base, Don Boswell singled to drive in Feaster. Wise singled to load the bases, and Ron Huber worked Dan Hollingsworth for a walk to force in the second run.

Upland will host Ganesha tomorrow afternoon for a 3:15 contest.

ERNIE VIVEROS, Chaffey's catcher, is moving so fast toward home plate that he has to hold his helmet on. Viveros receives the "stand-up" sign from Panther second baseman Darrell Cederlind. The Panthers spotted Riverside four runs before coming alive to turn them back, 11-4. The win gave the Panthers sole possession of first place in the Mission Conference, with the next team a full two games behind.

Panthers streak past Tigers, 11-4

There is a trite saying going around the Chaffey College campus these days which states, "God is not dead; He is alive and coaching baseball at Chaffey!" The saying's veritability may be measured at the Panther's success this season under coach Howard Lowder.

The Chaffey Horsehiders are now 22-8 for the season and lead the Mission Conference with an 8-1 record. Their latest two conquests were a 9-8 squeaker over San Bernardino, and an 11-4 thrashing of cellar-dweller Riverside.

San Bernardino was considered to be a definite threat for the title and honored that recognition by winning their first three games in MC action. But the Indians have dropped six out of their last seven contests, and now occupy sixth place.

Grossmont is the only threat to the Panthers, but the Griffins trail by two full games with a 6-3 record. One of their wins came earlier in the season against Chaffey, 4-2.

"Panther Power" was in full display against the Indians, as Chaffey ripped 13 hits off two San Bernardino hurlers, six for extra bases.

Frank Nelson and Ernie Viveros led the Panther attack, with Nelson collecting a homer in the fifth inning and a triple in the seventh. Viveros aided winning pitcher Jack Wenger with a double and a home run.

The Panthers now have to win only two more games to clinch the conference championship, as they turned back Riverside. Chaffey collected 11 runs on ten hits and four Tiger errors.

After sitting out most of the first half of the season because of an injury, all Citrus Belt selection Frank DiCristo allowed just six hits, four of them infield dribblers in turning back the Tigers.

DiCristo's win evened his MC mark at 1-1, but not before struggling through the first three innings. He spotted Riverside four runs, but came alive in the third to blank the Tigers.

During the six middle innings, DiCristo did not allow a single hit, and threw just 124 pitches in the one hour, 56 minute duel.

Jeff Wingert 'lowered' his batting average to .541 from .545, but collected a triple and a home run in four trips to the plate.

Wingert is the best hitter on the Panther squad and in the Mission Conference.

His two-run homer in the eighth inning, a 385-ft shot over the left field fence, capped the five-run inning.

Chaffey will host their only threat for the MC crown today at 2:30. If the Panthers beat Grossmont today, it will clinch the title, and they will play the winner of the Desert League, Mt. San Jacinto leads that conference with a 10-1 record.

The two schools have met twice before with the Panthers winning both contests by narrow margins.

Alta Loma loses two

Last week was not the week for the Alta Loma baseball squad. Whether for astrological reasons or physical ones, the ball always seemed to bounce the other way when a Brave got near it.

Wind-blown fly balls, bad bouncing grounders, and 21 Workman hits were the scourge of the Braves, as they dropped the more than lopsided affair, 26-4.

Workman presently occupies third place in the Hacienda League behind Wilson and Gladstone, who are tied. Both clubs have identical 5-2 records.

Rick Mack continued his hitting streak for the Braves, collecting a pair of hits in three appearances. Doug Young also collected a pair of hits, while Mike Gilliam, along with Mack, ripped a double.

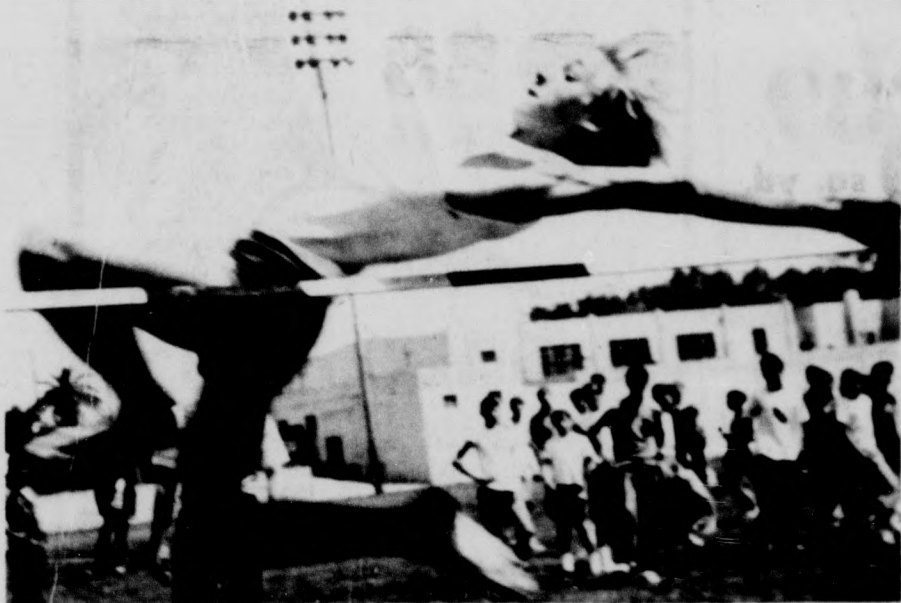

Still shaken after the thrashing by Workman, the Braves never got started against Gladstone. The Gladiators collected seven runs on ten hits, and were aided by three Alta Loma miscues.

The Braves also banged out ten hits, but left all but one man stranded in the 7-1 loss. Title hopes are almost out of the question for Coach Artie Keough's Braves now, but no one is giving up.

Mack led the AL attack with three hits in four trips to the plate. Bill Larson was the only other Brave to collect more than one hit, as he had a perfect day going 2 for 2 with one walk.

The home team scored their lone run in the fourth inning when Larson walked. He moved to third on Juan Vasquez's double. Jim Burt hit a sacrifice fly to left, scoring Larson.

Alta Loma will trek to Ontario High School tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 to even their mark at 5-3.

UP, UP, AND OVER -- Curtis Oldenkamp attempts to set a meet record at the high jump in the First Annual Optimist International junior high tract meet last weekend. Oldenkamp, from Upland Junior High, won the event at 4-8, but narrowly missed 5-0 for the record. The future Highlanders finished second in the 8th grade division and 4th in the 7th grade category, competing against four other schools.

Cavs bid for crown

Montclair High School's baseball team is making its bid for the San Antonio League crown known to the leaders. The Cavaliers

AL thinclads share lead

Like so many other Hacienda League sports, track competition is a close race for the title. Three teams are presently tied for the lead with 5-1 records. Alta Loma is one of them by romping over Sierra Vista, 77-41 last week.

Gladstone and Workman also have first-place records with Workman having to go against Ontario today. Alta Loma will have an easy day of it, facing Walnut, while the Gladiators will host a tough Royal Oak team.

Ted Troia was the lone double winner for the Braves in the varsity division, while Joe Horn scored a triple in the Bee category.

Troia has lost very few races in the 220 and 440-yard runs this year and extended his mark by capturing firsts in both events. His times were 23.5 (220) and 50.4.

Other first-place finishers for Alta Loma were Fernie Oliva (880), Art Montandon (long jump), Kevin Barnes (high jump), Terry Carlson (pole vault) and the 440 and mile relay teams.

Outstanding marks for the day were Barnes' 5-11 leap in the high jump and Troia's 23.5 in the 220.

liers knocked Garey out of a share of the lead with a 4-3 thrashing of the Vikings and turned around to slip past Bonita, 3-2.

The pair of wins evens the Cavaliers' league mark at 5-5, and puts them two games back of the present leader, Chino.

After spotting Bonita one run in the first inning, Montclair came back to bang across two of their own on Al Stelter's triple. The booming drive to left center drove in Gregg Campbell and Dennis Dempsey, who reached base on singles.

Bonita came back to even matters in the fifth, but only temporarily. The Cavs pushed across the deciding run in their half of the inning as Hank Merenda walked, stole second, took third on a walk and scored on Gregg Campbell's third single of the game.

Campbell recorded half of the Cavaliers' hits in the game, while Bearcat Alan Carter collected two of Bonita's four safeties.

Scott Cassells was on the mound and shut off the Bearcats to four hits and only one walk.

In the 4-3 stomping of Garey, Montclair's Jim Ventry allowed just four hits, but had to watch his team make nine errors in the Keystone Kop affair.

All of the Viking runs were unearned and not many more of the Cavaliers were earned. Both teams displayed floundering defenses, but the difference in the game was the Cav's 10 hits to the Vikes' four.

Montclair scored the winning run in the seventh.

'Infallible' end to hijacking

LOS ANGELES - "There is a way to prevent any hijackings of airlines," says Major Roger A. Picard, U.S. Air Force Safety Officer, and Chaytor D. Mason, Associate Professor of Aerospace Safety at the University of Southern California.

The answer to airline hijackings is simple, inexpensive, and can be done now, they said. Most important—it is infallible.

Major Picard is a student in USC's Institute of Aerospace Safety and Management. Mason is one of his professors in aviation psychology.

How many hijackings would be attempted if all airlines were completely automated so that once the flight had begun nothing could occur in the passenger cabin which would alter the destination of the airline? The answer is obvious—none. No hijacker would attempt the impossible.

Hijackings today are successful because the hijacker is able to force his way into the cockpit, or is able to communicate with the flight crew his threat of harm to the crew, airline, or passengers. If there were no possible way to communicate with the flight crew, he would be totally impotent to carry out his plans. The hijacker would land at its intended destination.

The answer, then is twofold: To prevent entry into the flight deck, and to abolish communication between the cabin and the flight deck.

Lightweight armor plating is cheap and available. An armor wall between the cabin and flight deck, with an unbreakable lock, would prevent unauthorized entry to the flight deck and harm to the flight crew. If there were no communications link, no telephone between the cabin and flight deck, the hijacker would have no way to threaten the crew, and holding hostages in the cabin would serve no purpose. Without access to, or communication with the flight deck, the potential hijacker would have no more control over the course of the airline than he would if a computer were driving the plane to its destination. No hijacker would attempt the impossible.

The question naturally arises as to whether it is ever necessary for the flight crew to have access to the passenger cabin, although it is common today. A study by the Airline Pilots Association shows that flight engineers and second officers are now occasionally called into the passenger cabin to: subdue combative passengers, extinguish cabin fires, aid sick passengers, and to examine air leaks in entry doors. This help is more mentally uplifting than vitally necessary. Stewardesses now are trained to handle most of these problems, and better training could alleviate the necessity for the flight crew member leaving his station at all. It is true that in some older model aircraft a crew member occasionally returns to the cabin to inspect the landing gear or wing, but optical systems have been installed, or could be installed, in the cockpit to eliminate this necessity. If the cabin crew were given proper training and equipment to handle passenger problems, there would be no occasion for the flight crew to leave the flight deck.

But what if there was an emergency in the cabin beyond the capacities of the cabin-stewardess personnel? A simple alarm system, now available in some aircraft, of a button in the cabin and a bell in the cockpit could notify the pilot there was an emergency beyond the capacities of the cabin personnel. Hijackers could not use this system to communicate with the cockpit crew because the signaling code would carry no such complicated message. In a serious emergency, the stewardess could ring such a bell twice, indicating "land as soon as safely practicable." Three bells, "land as soon as possible," and one bell, "situation again in control." If the emergency was the presence of a hijacker, the only change in flight plan that he could expect would be to be landed at the nearest available airport.

At present, a similar system of warning indicates to the flight crew if there is a gross emergency in the baggage area of the aircraft. There are heat and smoke sensors which indicate the presence of smoke and fire. Similar sensors could be installed in the cabin which would notify flight crew of this problem without necessity of telephone or personal contact with the cabin crew. Cabin air pressure loss is noticed immediately by changes in the cabin pressure instrumentation which is now installed on the flight deck. There should be no occasion which would demand that a flight crew member open the door and return to the passenger cabin.

The lack of communication between the cabin and cockpit would not have to be a two-way proposition. The public address system now used could be continued so that the pilot could announce late arrivals, emergency and evacuation instructions, and public relations material to the passengers. It is commonly thought by passengers that the pilots are necessary for their safety in an emergency evacuation of the airliner.

However, many airlines train their stewardesses to handle all emergency procedures and evacuation without any aid from the flight crew.

In fact, there have been cases of unnecessary injury caused by pilot personnel not familiar with the evacuation procedures attempting to take charge. Such a definition of responsibility between cabin and flight crew would eliminate confusion and demand the best possible training of cabin personnel.

At present, access to the flight deck is normal, so that stewardesses may bring coffee and meals to the flight crew during prolonged flights. Sometimes they enter the flight deck to seek advice (or to take a break).

Better training would eliminate need for the consultation. Prepared meals, taken aboard by the flight crew, would eliminate the need for the flight mignon. Physical needs of the flight crew could be alleviated with the same portable sanitary facilities that the Air Force bomber crews now use on their 15-hour flights.

One vital factor in the solution to the problem is that potential hijackers should know positively that they could in no way influence the flight destination of the airliner. They should be advised that the cockpit is impenetrable, and that there is no possible communication link access between the cabin and the cockpit.

lems, but they are minor, and some advantages can be gained from the solution of each.

The pilots would not like to give up some of their responsibility to the cabin personnel, but adequate warning devices would allow them to maintain general knowledge of the situation in the cabin area without exposure. Stewardesses would have increased responsibility for handling problems now taken care of by flight crew members; they could be trained to do so, or seek assistance from other passengers.

Since the flight deck area would be relatively impenetrable from the cabin, in case of a crash adequate escape exits would have to be provided on the flight deck where they do not now exist. Current problems of poor communication between pilots and stewardesses might be increased by the lack of communication, but proper pre-flight briefing sessions could increase the trust and responsibility of all members of the crew.

United Crusade leader announced

Dr. Kettenhofen

Dr. Robert F. Kettenhofen, Pomona optometrist, has been named campaign chairman for the United Crusade in the Pomona Valley area, according to an announcement by Vincent F. Martin, chairman of the Pomona Valley United Way board.

"These days of crisis, of social changes, often violent, too often without direction, present many problems and challenges to our communities," said Kettenhofen. "The first requisite in effectively meeting a challenge or solving a problem is understanding -- and understanding grows out of involvement."

"In other words," he continued, "we can best meet our community challenges through our involvement in the United Crusade, a volunteer organization dedicated to help provide the best possible youth, health and charitable services and programs to all valley residents."

Kettenhofen, noting that the building of the 1970

United Crusade campaign structure got underway more than a month ago, said that increased volunteer recruitment will be necessary to successfully implement new and broadened campaign plans. Recruitment this year is slated to reach 1900, approximately 500 over last year. Community involvement is Pomona Valley's key to successful United Crusade drives year after year, said Kettenhofen. Co-chairman of last years campaign, Kettenhofen headed the professions department in 1968.

A native of Pomona, Kettenhofen has maintained a local office for 24 years. He has served as secretary of the California Optometric Association; secretary of the board of trustees of the Los Angeles College of Optometry and is past president of the state board of Optometry.

Past president of the Pomona Rotary Club, he has also served on committees for many organizations including United Way and YMCA. Dr. Kettenhofen was recipient of the Jaycees Distinguished Service Award in 1950.

The Kettenhofens, Pomona residents, are the parents of two daughters, Janis and Judy and a son, Jon.

'Key to Poly' is open house theme

Poly Vue, annual open house at California State Polytechnic College, Pomona, carries this year the theme, "A Key to Poly," and is scheduled for May 8-9.

In keeping with the theme, four Cal Poly students traveled to Sacramento on April 14 to present to Governor Ronald Reagan a twelve (12) inch gold key labeled "A Key to Poly," as an invitation to the people of the State of California to attend Poly Vue.

The Poly Vue Committee, represented by Chairman Jeanne Rexin, Queen Sandi Belettruti, Queen's Chairman Tim Taggart, and Photographer Bill Carlquist, presented the key to Governor Reagan.

This year's open house activities will include a National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Rodeo, a Horse Show, a Carnival and dance, a deep pit barbecue, a grand prix, a Spring Sing, and a play, "Camino Real." The major emphasis of Poly Vue is on academic affairs.

Exhibits by the Schools of Agriculture, Arts, Business, Engineering, and Science, as well as special exhibits by the Rose Float Club, the United Mexican American Association, the Black Student Union, the Education Club, Staff Council, and many others, serve as examples to the citizens of the State of California of the type of education Cal Poly has to offer.

The Wide, Wide World of Pat Walker

A maverick, completely feminine, at home in the divergent worlds of industry and beauty, Pat Walker is dedicated, colorful . . . many-faceted. She has become an international figure, as well known in such exotic places as Suva, in the Fiji Islands as she is in "beautiful downtown Glendale."

How did it all happen? How did this tiny dynamic Irish lass bring reducing to the natives of Kailua in the Pacific and to the sophisticated matrons of Los Angeles and points east? The story is one of perseverance, dedication, ingenuity and . . . success. But getting the 'Pat Walker Story' from this whirlwind is like embarking on your own private Odyssey! Whether she is personally selecting appointments for a new salon, reviewing newspaper advertisements, conferring on new leases, visiting one of her Southern California operations; keeping in touch with the figure problems of individual patrons through salon managers in all parts of the world—all these activities are part and parcel of the hectic day in the life of this lady executive. For that she is, without a doubt. But with all this proficiency in business, the quality which one finds most predominant is the truly warm and sincere character dedicated to providing her patrons with the finest in comfortable, luxurious salons, and most important, the most effective method of reducing.

Begins With One Salon

The wide, wide world of Pat Walker begins with a single salon in southern California nearly twenty years ago and the conviction that the Pat Walker Salons would become a nationwide symbol, synonymous with reducing. Today, with salons in the continental United States, Kailua and Honolulu, Hawaii; Sydney, Australia, this symbol has become international.

A recent addition in Houston, Texas and several new locations on the board keep this dynamic lass building bridges of goodwill wherever she goes. Typical of the fascination Pat Walker has for millions of women is evidenced by her recent trip to Hawaii. When she disembarked from the plane, a group of her patrons welcomed her with traditional Hawaiian leis. At still another overseas location, some of her friends and former patrons gathered a musical group to herald her arrival. In the United States, when she is present at the opening of a new salon or makes one of her well known weekly appearances at a particular salon, many of her patrons make it a point to visit and she delights in meeting and chatting with new clients. Men and women alike have seen her in photos in hundreds of ads, some of them taken with patrons; yet the inevitable element of wonder is there. The big surprise always seems to be that there really is a Pat Walker.

Develops Exclusive Method

She is considered a 'maverick' in the industry, because she developed the only original reducing method and has persisted in her determination to personally control every facet of the Pat Walker operation, every step of the way. I asked her why she doesn't franchise her business and lessen the strain of an increasingly demanding schedule. She remarked, "For nearly twenty years, we have been able to assure the quality of our method and our salon operations only by providing the kind of service and results which being in complete control affords. If we were to franchise," she continues, "we would no longer be able to guarantee our patrons the same excellence of performance from the moment they enter a Pat Walker Salon, until they have completed their figure correction." "Again," she states, "you must remember the emphasis we place on careful supervision of every phase of our business, beginning with the manufacturing of all our units." (This always comes as a surprise — people are not aware of the manufacturing plant she owns and operates in Los Angeles).

"The design, engineering and manufacturing of each and every Pat Walker unit is under our control directly every step of the way at the factory, from the ordering of raw materials to final testing of completed units. Our electronically controlled unit programs each patron's figure correction.

Developed after seven years of research and a ¼ million dollar development cost, the patented Pat Walker unit is more expensive to manufacture than most automobiles. Each unit weighs in excess of 900 pounds."

"Another first, and again, original, exclusive development is our Photometric Process. Researching for a completely accurate method for recording body measurement, we developed this unique process for measuring inch loss, utilizing the latest scientific developments. Photometric accurately measures and records the slightest change in a woman's figure . . . you can actually see the weight and inch loss!"

As she speaks, the charm and excitement of this remarkable woman prevails, whether she is reviewing the development of a new salon location, or planning some new charity event. But there is more than just business spinning around in her pretty head. Confined with rheumatic fever at eighteen — given six months to live, she resolved to conquer her illness and with the same courage and fortitude she applies to every problem, made a complete and total recovery. The early years are passed over quickly in conversation with Pat Walker, for she is a woman on the move who has no time for dwelling on the past.

Charities Benefit

Underprivileged Children

Little is known of her many charities, mostly involving children. Her compassion for a special group of 'unwanted' and 'underprivileged' children led to a monumental effort to beg, borrow and/or coerce every individual with whom she came in contact in business to donate to a charity event which she held in her home. Proceeds went to the children and the Pat Walker pervicacity once more prevailed. She gave unstintingly of her time, money and effort and expected everyone else to do the same. Businessmen and women were alternately badgered, charmed, commanded, wheeled or coaxed into supporting the effort. A party is held in her home for them at Christmas time and is an annual, personal Pat Walker event.

With Pat Walker, every day is an adventure. Accustomed to success in everything she undertakes, I quizzed her on the secret of her success in business and she answered, "I've never really taken the time to think about it, but I suppose if I had to point to a single dominating factor, I would cite the high standards of quality and perfection which have earned us the confidence of more than 5 million women. 'The surprising thing is', she continued, "that reducing problems are the same regardless of demographic factors. Women want to look their very best, regardless of their ethnic, economic or social backgrounds. And also, at Pat Walker's, we don't make ridiculous claims in our advertising and when we talk to our patrons, we don't insult their intelligence by telling a patron that she is going from a size 16 to a size 10 in two visits. Our patrons appreciate our 'telling it like it is'. When a woman comes into our salon, we give her a personalized figure analysis, without obligation, and tell her exactly where she needs to lose, how long it will take and what her reducing program will cost—and we guarantee results. Our patrons discuss their problems in private with us—their treatments are given in complete privacy, and they do not disrobe for treatments."

All these factors contribute to the ever growing list of more than 5 million satisfied patrons, and are responsible for the opening of salons in new areas, bringing the Pat Walker program to an ever-increasing number of women internationally.

Reducing Statistics Compiled

Several questions came to my mind as I wondered about the oldest person ever to reduce, the youngest; the greatest amount of weight loss from a woman and which area of the body most often needs reducing. Firing my questions all at once brought nearly as quick a response as Pat Walker replied: "The oldest woman we have ever reduced was a 91 year old Los Angeles lady, and one of the youngest was a seven year old girl whose mother brought her into our salon after trying various diets, and other methods. You might be interested in the greatest amount of weight we have reduced from one individual . . . that was a loss of 194 pounds from a woman who had been obese for many, many years".

As I tagged along after Miss Walker on the way to the airport trying to keep up and to learn more about this fascinating, multifarious personality, the assemblage resembled a mass movement, instead of one little 5-foot, 3", 101 pound dynamo. First came Miss Walker with some fourteen pieces of luggage (she was flying to Australia from Houston) giving staccato-voiced instructions to her secretary: "Remember to confirm my reservations to Australia; send me the process report on the units being built for the new salon; be sure to send me the color samples for the new draperies", and so on.

Then came the big, soft smile — her eyes lit up and I knew the children were in sight. For Pat Walker, mother, is still another story and the most important of her life. Whenever she can, she moves appointments and cancels engagements to attend some special happening in their lives — it may be a party in the classroom of four year old Sean, or participating in one of twelve year old Bridget's many activities.

Chic, confident, mature, Pat Walker is definitely a woman on the move and measuring the wide, wide world of Pat Walker in a single profile becomes more and more difficult, as she continues to expand that world to bring the Pat Walker Reducing method to an ever increasing number of women in an ever growing number of figure perfection salons.

'Hi Ho Silver' takes to sky without 'a cloud of dust'

"Thundering hooves, a cloud of dust, and a hearty 'Hi Ho Silver!'" Remember that? Times have changed considerably since those "thrilling days of yesteryear, however, and the thunder and clouds being generated by today's sleek silver jetliners aren't being met with the same hearty enthusiasm that greeted the Lone Ranger.

Noisy engines and trails of smoke have been unfavorably associated with jet airliners since their inauguration more than a decade ago. Thus, when Pacific Southwest Airlines began building its own fleet of jetliners in 1965, it began immediately to seek cures for those generally ill-favored aspects of the engines powering its aircraft.

The result over the past five years has been a reduction in take-off noise from PSA aircraft, a headstart in the reduction of smoke emissions from the company's planes, and the virtual elimination of noise and smoke from PSA's jet engine test cell at its maintenance headquarters in San Diego.

PSA's latest move in the elimination of exhaust smoke from its jet engines, according to company president J. Floyd Andrews, is the installation of a "smoke eliminator" on its jet engine test cell at San Diego's Lindbergh Field. Smoke pollution from the test cell is now a thing of the past because of this modification, says Andrews.

But the modification of its test cell is far from being PSA's first effort in the field of noise and air pollution control. As far back as 1965, when PSA first began operating its Boeing 727 jetliners, the company has been recognized for its efforts to curb aircraft noise.

In a study conducted near the Los Angeles airport by the research firm of Bolt, Beranek and Newman, Inc., PSA jets were found to be creating less noise than most aircraft of the other airlines. This was true even when PSA pilots were making mid-runway take-offs (beginning their take-off roll from some mid-point on the runway rather than from the far end of the runway). One reason for these quieter take-offs has been the practice of PSA pilots of carefully computing the minimum power required for each take-off. This power setting differs from one flight to the next because of variations in fuel, baggage, and number of passengers being carried. By using minimum power on take-off, excessive noise and smoke emission is avoided. At the same time, additional power is always available if it is needed.

The City of El Segundo, long dissatisfied with noise and air pollution being generated at Los Angeles Airport, recognized PSA's efforts in the area of noise abatement and commended the airline in a public letter.

Similar efforts have been made in San Diego, and the company's maintenance department there has a standing policy that no aircraft engines will be operated or tested between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m., in order to avoid disturbing San Diego residents near the airport.

PSA also recognized the problem of smoke pollution being generated by its aircraft engines, and by 1968 was working with the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Company in the testing of smoke-reduced engines. Pratt & Whitney is the manufacturer of PSA's jet engines. Thus far, nine "smoke-reduced" engines are in use on PSA aircraft.

The engines make use of advanced technology "burner cans" -- combustion chambers which eliminate pollutant smoke and gases by allowing a longer burning time for the jet fuel. The improved burner cans are being installed on PSA's jet engines as they become available from the manufacturer. Small though they are, the burner cans cost nearly $800 apiece because of the advanced technology and exotic metals required to build them. With nine of the cans to an engine, total cost of modifying each engine can range from $8,000 to $10,000 apiece. But PSA president Andrews is certain the company will meet its 1972 deadline to end jet-engine smoke.

Although smoke isn't the only problem created by jet engines, it is the primary pollutant being exhausted by the big turbines. Unlike automobiles, jet engine exhausts contain only a fraction of a per cent of the toxic gases generally associated with air pollution. Pratt & Whitney, in discussing pollution problems, points out that analysis of jet engine exhaust gases has shown that the compounds normally considered to be toxic such as carbon monoxide, oxides of nitrogen and sulfur, hydrogen sulfide and hexane are found at insignificant levels or are undetectable with present instrumentation. However, particulate matter in the form of unburned carbon particles is present and is visible in the exhaust plume of certain engine models.

Thus, the primary cause of air pollution from PSA's jet engines will have been brought under control when the company completes modification of its engines.

Smoke emission was also a problem on PSA's jet engine test cell until installation of the "smoke eliminator" corrected the discrepancy. Primary ingredient of the pollution controller is a liquid additive which is injected into the fuel lines leading to aircraft engines being tested in the cell.

The additive lowers the temperature at which carbon particles begin to burn, resulting in a more complete burning of the fuel being used in the engine. Since the visible smoke emitted from jet engines is made up almost entirely of unburned carbon particles, the more complete combustion of those particles results in the disappearance of smoke emissions.

Injection of the additive into the engine fuel system can be turned on or off from the control room of the test cell. Once the fluid reaches the engine, the results are dramatic. The plume of black smoke from the engine's exhaust disappears almost entirely, leaving only shimmering heat waves to be seen.

"It works beautifully," beamed PSA power plant engineer Ralph McNeil during a trial run of the test cell with the new device. But the additive isn't cheap, he said. "It costs about $1200 for a 55-gallon barrel."

PSA tests an average of at least one jet engine a day at its Lindbergh Field maintenance headquarters, according to McNeil. The tests examine every parameter of the engine's operation after it has been overhauled or repaired and before it is reinstalled on an aircraft. Testing usually takes almost an entire average workday for a single engine. The test cell itself is built so that the sound of the jet engine is exhausted within the structure. As a result, the dull whine of the engine can be heard only within a few yards of the test cell. Thus, with the addition of the smoke eliminator, both sound and smoke pollution have been brought under control in the testing of PSA's aircraft engines.

Teacher-ethics code adopted by state board

SACRAMENTO -- A code of ethics for California teachers, establishing standards of fairness and honesty, will take effect in mid-May. The code, adopted unanimously by the State Board of Education at a recent meeting, stresses careful preparation for classes, objective presentation of subjects and use of constructive criticism rather than ridicule in dealing with students, the Education News Service reports.

It admonishes the teacher that "his institutional privilege shall not be used for private gain."

Violation of the code could, in some cases, lead to a teacher's dismissal. The criticism of the lone opponent appearing before the board centered on a section of the code on the teacher's commitment to the public:

"He has an obligation to support his profession and institution and not to misrepresent them in public discussion. When he criticizes it in public he has an obligation not to distort the facts."

Miles Myers, vice president of the California Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, said that "anyone who wishes could use a section like this to keep teachers quiet."

Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, said the intention was not to silence teachers, but rather to discourage the airing of "distortions."

"I don't know of anyone in the state who has been more critical of education than I, but I have taken great care not to distort facts," Rafferty said.

The code will apply to elementary and high school teachers, and apparently also to junior college instructors who received their credentials from the State Board of Education.

Under the code, "any violation is unprofessional."

"However, to constitute unprofessional conduct and cause for suspension, revocation or denial of a certification document, such violations shall be only those which either involve jeopardy to student welfare; evident malice, serious incompetency of bad judgement; or show a consistent pattern of misconduct."

Laurence D. Kearney, the board's attorney, said that hearing officers and judges would look at the code as a guide in teacher dismissal cases. "In a sense, it has the effect of law."

Export workshop May 4

Manufacturers and businessmen who are interested in learning more about how to enter lucrative export markets now available to U.S. business are invited to attend an export expansion workshop to be held Monday afternoon, May 4 in San Bernardino.

The workshop is jointly sponsored by the San Bernardino County Economic Development Department and the County of Riverside Department of Development. These two organizations, cooperative offices of the U.S. Department of Commerce, will be working with the Los Angeles Field Office, U.S. Department of Commerce, in presenting this workshop.

Discussions will center on the various elements of international marketing, export financing, foreign freight forwarding, the role of banks in exporting, export control, how to prepare overseas quotations and other important aspects of marketing abroad. There will also be a review of the new marketing services of the U.S. Department of Commerce. Jack Rokahr, assistant to director, Los Angeles Field Office, Department of Commerce, will act as moderator and there will be specially invited advisory guests from the international banking and exporting community who will give the benefit of their experience and expertise.

The workshop is free and open to all interested persons. It will meet from 1:30 to 4 in the Community Room, second floor, Title Insurance and Trust Company, 340 West 4th Street, San Bernardino. To make reservations, call the San Bernardino County Economic Development Department, (714) 884-5161.

$11.3 million tax bill for SC Edison

Southern California Edison Co. has paid the final installment of its 1969-70 property taxes, boosting its total tax payments directly benefiting San Bernardino County during the tax year to $11.3 million, according to R. W. Bond, Upland manager.

About half of this money will go directly to the support of public schools in the county, the Edison official said.

The investor-owned utility's combined 1969-70 property tax payments in 15 counties in central and southern California totaled a record $74 million.

Edison is the largest single taxpayer in several counties, including Riverside, San Bernardino and Ventura, he said.

Taxes paid by the electric company to all levels of government last year totaled $112 million.

'Dinner guest'

Termites, or the damage they have caused, will be discovered in more than 2,000,000 homes this year. They'll do more dollar damage than all tornadoes, hurricanes and windstorms combined.

More than 90 percent of this damage will have been caused by the subterranean termite, a particularly hungry species who shuns light and air and, therefore, isn't often seen until the damage is done.

To help homeowners learn about termites... how they live... where they attack, how to prevent them, where to get help... Velicol Chemical Corporation has prepared a brochure entitled "Look Who's Coming To Dinner." For a free copy write: Termites, 341 East Ohio Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Quimby urges more use of school TV

SACRAMENTO — A far-reaching program to establish television and radio communications as an integral part of California's public school system has been proposed by Assemblyman John Quimby, D-Rialto.

Titled the Educational Resources Act of 1970, the proposal envisions the use of audio-visual materials, equipment and facilities; instructional television, computer instructional resources and telecommunications processes and systems.

Quimby, author of a law in 1962 which established, for the first time in the state, a comprehensive program of instruction through the use of television, said there was a definite need to utilize the major advances in electronics communications in the field of public education.

Quimby, noting that the Reagan Administration in its budget proposal for the 1970-71 fiscal year had abolished the state's Television Advisory Committee, said there must be a modern, dramatic system within the public school system to replace the defunct committee.

"Educational television has proved itself as one of the more effective means of instruction," the lawmaker said. "California's public schools have committed themselves to this dramatic concept of instruction and to halt such programs would be ignoring the fact that electronics is one of the most viable tools of instruction educators have available."

Quimby's proposal calls for a $3.6 million state appropriation to implement the program through creation of an Educational Resources Agency within the state Department of Education.

The agency would be composed of a full time executive secretary and 10 persons appointed by the governor and representing the Legislature, public schools and educational television.

Quimby said the members of the agency would be selected based on their experience in educational telecommunication.

"This agency," he explained, "would establish a system of telecommunications facilities and resources to provide and support instructional services to every student enrolled in public education institutions."

Quimby said an additional role of the agency would be to produce and distribute educational television and radio programs through the system to every student.

The lawmaker said the proposal has the support of both the educational and commercial television industries.

Catholic high schools to raise tuition this year

Tuition in Los Angeles archdiocesan high schools will be raised next September to approximately equal actual costs of the education provided and to help reduce a yearly deficit for the whole school system that last year reached $9,000,000.

Msgr. Donald Montrose, Archdiocesan Superintendent of High Schools, said that "present levels of tuition do not meet the cost of education, and tuition must be raised to meet that cost. A spiraling deficit cannot continue indefinitely."

The deficit, he explained, now has reached $9,000,000 a year. Of this amount, $7,000,000 is accrued by the elementary school system and $2,000,000 by the high schools.

The present tuition raise seeks to reduce by $500,000 this year the amount of subsidy allotted to the high schools by the archdiocese. A subsidy of $1,500,000 to the high schools will remain in effect. Its main thrust will be to meet the difference between what poor families can pay and the actual cost of schooling. The actual tuition increase will vary with the school.

"Where families in lower economic areas are unable to meet rising tuition costs," he explained, "the Archdiocese will continue to try to meet their needs, as it has in the past, through the generosity of parishes in other areas."

The Army Reserve consists of more than one million officers and enlisted men and women, all dedicated to the highest principles of military service.

Board voids anti-segregation rules

All state regulations aimed at doing something about the problem of de facto segregation have been tossed out by the State Board of Education in a move to discourage busing.

In an emergency action at a recent meeting in Sacramento the board voted 6-3 to set aside the regulations. Board President Howard Day asked for the repeal because the rules "have been distorted out of their original context by certain recent court decisions," reports the Education News Service.

Day directed the State Department of Education to consider for the board. They will be reviewed in May when the board will hold a public hearing about its emergency decision of last week.

The move came as a surprise. It was not on the agenda and there had been no advance public warning that the board would consider such a major action. In order to make such a move without public hearing the board had to find the existence of a state of public emergency.

"These regulations have been cited in past and pending litigation in support of mass transportation of pupils from one attendance center area to another," the board declared in its description of the emergency. "It is necessary that the board's disfavor of this practice be known immediately."

Recent court decisions in Pasadena and Los Angeles promoted the action. In a suit against the Pasadena City School District, a U. S. District Court ordered desegregation of the schools. A Los Angeles County Superior Court gave a similar order to the giant Los Angeles City School District. Both judges made reference to the State Board of Education regulations in their decisions.

"It was never the intention of the State Board of Education as it existed in 1969 to have judges use our advisory guidelines as ironclad rules of law," Day said. "It was our feeling at that time, and it is my personal feeling still, that we must have guidelines which will support and protect the desirable principle of desegregation of our California public schools. This board has always stood for this principle, and I hope that it always will."

However, Day continued, "because of the distortion of our original intention through judicial decisions" the board should repeal the rules.

The three opponents to the repeal of the rules were Dr. John Ford of San Diego, the Rev. Donn Moomaw of Los Angeles and new member Tony Sierra of Calexico. All three questioned the need to repeal the existing rules before new ones are drawn up. Ford, a Negro, said he was opposed to mandatory busing but the regulations draw attention to a problem. He declared:

"Although there are certain areas of this... which could be improved, I would certainly hate to see us go on record as completely repealing this and thus show that this board has no sympathy, no understanding, and no desire to help the minority students of this state."

Day denied that repeal of the regulation would indicate a lack of interest in minority students.

Ice Capades to feature 'magic screen'

Every year Ice Capades has striven to introduce new and interesting innovations and this year its Multi-Vision combined with Magic Screen, makes for dazzling presentations of filmed action and live skating.

The 30th annual production will stage its Los Angeles premiere on Friday, May 1, at the Sports Arena. It will be a 26-performance run, closing on Sunday, May 17.

The Friday opening will start at 8:30 with scores of entertainment media celebrities in attendance. Subsequently, Saturday performances are set for 1, 5 and 9 p. m., matinees on Sundays at 1 and 5 p. m. while the Monday through Thursday shows will be at 8 p. m.

"Multi - Magic," as their new technique is called, contains three huge screens, each 20 feet high and 19 feet wide. They are operated by cameras high in the rafters into precise synchronization of movement. Completing the picture, the live skaters literally crash in and out of the flexible screens to create a memorable effect.

Tickets for the limited Sports Arena run are now on sale at the Los Angeles Sports Arena from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. SoCo, 634 S. Hill St., Wallich's Music Cities, Mutual Ticketron outlets.

Rehabilitation

SACRAMENTO - In preparation for the upcoming celebration of the 50th anniversary of the federal-state program of vocational rehabilitation in California in June, the State Department of Rehabilitation is attempting to identify living rehabilitants of each decade since the program started in 1921.

State Director of Rehabilitation Robert E. Howard explains, "We hope to choose a 'rehabilitant of the decade' since the program began. Over 112,000 Californians have been rehabilitated to date, but our records go back only to the 1940's. We need help in identifying living persons who were rehabilitated in the 1920's and the 1930's."

Disabled persons who were rehabilitated by the federal-state program in California from 1921 to 1940 or anyone knowing the name and address of a disabled person who was rehabilitated during that time are requested to communicate immediately with the State Department of Rehabilitation, 714 P Street, Sacramento, California 95814.

approved by the Federal Power Commission.

The increase granted to Southern California and Southern Counties immediately and on June 16 were $2,632,000 less than the gas companies had sought, and the ceiling set for any future increases is $443,000 lower than requested.

The Commission emphasized that the companies' rates of return on investment would be no higher than those found to be in the zones of reasonableness in March, 1969--6.7% to 6.96% for Southern California and 6.66% to 6.86% for Southern Counties.

The companies are currently before the Commission seeking higher rates of return, namely 8 percent.

State oks higher gas bill rates

LOS ANGELES - The California Public Utilities Commission has granted Southern California and Southern Counties an immediate $18,166,000 rate increase to offset the higher cost of gas it purchases from El Paso Natural Gas Company.

El Paso's higher rates went into effect April 13. Granted to the two local gas companies by the Commission at the same time were:

--Authority to increase rates another $20,941,000 on June 16 when their other major supplier, Transwestern Pipeline Company, will increase the cost of its gas, and

--Authority to "track" any future increases in gas costs from the pipeline companies which may occur between now and December 31. Ceiling on any future increases was set by the Commission at $20,263,000.

Increases to El Paso and Transwestern were
